Welfare Not Warfare - Say No to Tory War Games

HMS Queen Elizabeth is set to head up the biggest air and sea operation since the Falklands War. The government's plan is that on May 23 it will lead a carrier strike group bristling with weapons to visit trouble spots around the world ending in the China Seas with war games with Japan. The aim is to project the UK's military power and to support the US's New Cold War against China. This deployment can only increase military tensions around the world. Rather than spending billions on new military technology and displays of military power the government should focus its energy and resources on a struggling NHS and services stretched to breaking point by years of austerity.
